Colonial Williamsburg Foundation - EXARC Fellowship

The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation–EXARC Fellowship funds a one-month scholarship in residence (totaling $2,500) at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. It is a partnership between EXARC, the international organization of Archaeological Open-Air Museums and Experimental Archaeology, and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, America's largest outdoor living history museum.

Successful proposals will demonstrate potential to advance the understanding and practice of reconstructive and experimental archaeology and its interpretation through structured experimentation to recreate material culture, technology, or life-ways of the past.

Applicants need experience in ancient technology, experimental archaeology or interpretation, applicable to 18th century colonial American times.

Fellows are expected to be in continuous residence at Colonial Williamsburg and to actively participate in the intellectual life of the Foundation's research, educational, and interpretive campus.
