EAS^tS | Experimental Archaeology Student Symposium

9th – 10th June 2022

The Department of Archaeology, Classics and Egyptology is proud to announce that the 3rd Experimental Archaeology Student Symposium, will be hosted by the University of Liverpool in June 2022 in partnership with EXARC.

The popular EAS^tS symposium will be held in Liverpool over two days giving speakers and delegates the opportunity to meet and discuss in person and to visit our recently established Experimental Archaeology Research and Teaching Hub (EARTH) at Ness Botanical Gardens on the Wirral. Papers presented at the conference will also be shared with a wider audience of researchers via the web, providing the perfect forum for a new generation of experimental archaeologists to share data and ideas with the global research community.

We invite paper proposals related to experimental archaeology from students and early career researchers working on any period or geographical area including: experimental methods and theories, experiential approaches, object biographies, ethnography, and outreach.

If you would like to be considered to present, please submit the following information to EAS^tS22@Liverpool.ac.uk by Friday 28th January 2022:

- Title
- Institutional affiliation
- Up to 5 keywords
- Abstract (200 words max)

If you have any questions or queries, feel free to get in touch with us via email or on Twitter @EARTH_at_Ness
